

COPYING GUIDELINES

The Access Copyright Provincial and Territorial Government Licence provides pre-clearance for print and digital copying from over 100 million published works in Access Copyright's repertoire.

Through your licence, the creators and publishers whose works are copied receive royalties for that copying ensuring they can continue to create and publish new and innovative works.

Under the licence, you can copy:

Up to 10% of a published work, or any of the following:

- An entire newspaper article or page
- An entire short story, play, essay or article
- An entire single poem
- An entire entry from an encyclopedia, annotated bibliography, dictionary or similar reference work
- An entire reproduction of an artistic work such as a drawing, painting, print or photograph
- An entire report of a legal case from a periodical issue or volume containing other reports.

You can also share copies with other Access Copyright licensees that have an Access Copyright licence covering the reproduction and distribution of Published Works in the Repertoire.

You may NOT:

- Engage in cumulative copying of a published work beyond the licence's copying limits
- Sell copies or use them in relation to any advertising
- Make digital copies available outside of a password-protected secure network

Unsure a published work is in the Access Copyright Repertoire?

Visit our Title Search and Permission Tool by using the search box at the top of Access Copyright's website.

Access Copyright is here to help.

If you have any questions or would like the full terms and conditions of the Access Copyright Provincial and Territorial Government Licence, please call 1-800-893-5777 or email info@accesscopyright.ca.